OUR HISTORY

The winemaking tradition of Aguascalientes dates back to the 16th century, when vine cultivation was introduced into its fertile valleys. Thanks to its altitude, mild climate, and mineral soils, the state has developed high-quality grape production that is now experiencing a new boom.

With 8 municipalities dedicated to viticulture, Aguascalientes blends tradition, innovation, and tourism around wine, positioning itself as one of Mexico's most promising emerging regions. This new stage promotes local economic development, encourages sustainability, and enriches tourism with unique oenological experiences celebrating the region's identity and spirit.
